THINGS
TO KNOW

Trump held an hour-plus news conference Wednesday.

President Donald Trump on Wednesday defended Brett Kavanaugh at an intense solo news conference but also hinted that he could withdraw his support for Brett Kavanaugh depending on the testimony in a high-profile Thursday hearing into multiple accusations of sexual misconduct against the Supreme Court nominee.

Trump defended Kavanaugh, now a federal appeals court judge, at a New York news conference, but the president's comments injected another note of uncertainty into Kavanaugh's already-troubled bid for a lifetime appointment to the nation's highest court.

"You know, believe it or not, I'm going to see what's said" at the hearing, Trump told reporters.

A third woman has accused Kavanaugh of aggressive sexual behavior in the 1980s. The nominee has vehemently denied all of the allegations ahead of the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing coming up on Thursday, where one of his accusers, Christine Blasey Ford, will also testify to senators.

Trump dismissed the allegations against Kavanaugh as a "big fat con job" orchestrated by Democrats. Speaking to reporters in New York, where he is attending the annual

U.N. gathering of world leaders, Trump said of the new allegation, "I think it's ridiculous." On Twitter, Trump called Michael Avenatti, lawyer for the most recent accuser, Julie Swetnick, "a total low-life" and "a third rate lawyer who is good at making false accusations." Avenatti responded on Twitter, calling Trump "a habitual liar and complete narcissist."

He did not say that Kavanaugh's female accusers were lying.

"I can always be convinced," Trump said. "It will be interesting to hear what she has to say."

Trump himself has faced multiple accusations of sexual misconduct. He said this has shaped his view of the allegations against Kavanaugh.

"I've had a lot of false charges made against me," he said. "When I see it, I view it differently than someone sitting home watching television where they say, 'Oh, Judge Kavanaugh this and that.'"

Trump on Wednesday also blasted Canada over the slow pace of talks over NAFTA, saying he was so unhappy that he had rejected Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau's request for a one-on-one meeting.

The remarks by Trump, who repeated a threat to impose tariffs on Canadian autos, knocked the Canadian dollar down to a one-week low against the U.S. greenback.

The comments also mark a new low in relations between the two leaders. Trudeau spokeswoman Chantal Gagnon said: "No meeting was requested. We don't have any comment beyond that."

The attack cast further doubt on the future of the three-nation North American Free Trade Agreement, which underpins $1.2 trillion in annual trade between Canada, Mexico and the United States. Markets and business groups are openly fretting about the damage that a collapse could provoke.

Trump, who wants major changes to the 1994 treaty, has already concluded a text with Mexico and is threatening to leave out Canada unless it signs up by this Sunday.

Trump told reporters he had rebuffed a Trudeau request for a meeting "because his tariffs are too high and he doesn't seem to want to move and I told him 'forget about it.' And frankly we're thinking about just taxing cars coming in from Canada."

Trump also said on Wednesday he did not have a time frame for North Korea to denuclearize, just as his secretary of state, Mike Pompeo, plans to visit Pyongyang again next month to set up a second summit for Trump and North Korean leader Kim Jong Un.

"I think we're really going to do something that's going to be very important, but we're not playing the time game," Trump told reporters. "If it takes two years, three years or five months — doesn't matter." REUTERS

Matt Harvey didn't necessarily leave the Mets on a good note. In fact, go up to any Mets fan around the Big Apple and watch how their face twists and contorts in displeasure when you mention the pitcher formerly known as "The Dark Knight." Well, the feeling might be mutual: In a recent interview, Harvey possibly threw some major shade toward his old team. Find out what he said on page 25.

RBG VOICES SUPPORT FOR #METOO ON HEARING'S EVE

2 Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg voiced support for the #MeToo movement on Wednesday in a striking statement on the eve of a high-stakes U.S. Senate hearing into allegations of sexual misconduct by President Donald Trump's nominee to the court, Brett Kavanaugh. During a question-and-answer period that followed an address to first-year law students at Georgetown University in Washington, Ginsburg was asked if there was anything she was excited or disappointed about regarding the current women's movement. After discussing the problem of "unconscious bias" that leads to gender discrimination, she said she was "cheered on" by the #MeToo movement, a national reckoning with sexual assault and harassment that has brought down dozens of rich and powerful men. "Every woman of my vintage has not just one story but many stories, but we thought there was nothing you could do about it — boys will be boys — so just find a way to get out of it," said Ginsburg, 85. Ginsburg said that the #MeToo movement showed women coming together in numbers.

COSBY'S APPEAL LIKELY TO FOCUS ON ACCUSERS

3 Bill Cosby's appeal of his conviction for sexual assault is expected to focus on a Pennsylvania judge's decision to allow several accusers to testify against him, but his challenge faces significant hurdles, according to legal experts. The disgraced comedian's first trial hinged largely on the credibility of a single woman, his onetime friend Andrea Constand, who said he drugged and sexually assaulted her in 2004, and ended in a hung jury. At his second trial in April, Montgomery County Judge Steven O'Neill allowed the jury to hear five other women with strikingly similar stories of sexual abuse. Cosby was found guilty and on Tuesday was sentenced to up to 10 years in prison. Cosby's lawyers face a difficult burden in convincing an appellate court to second-guess O'Neill's decision, experts told Reuters. "I don't think that they have any significant likelihood of winning this appeal," said Michelle Dempsey, a law professor at Villanova University in Philadelphia. "The evidence was solid, and the standard in Pennsylvania is clear."

Brett Kavanaugh denies sexual-misconduct accusation by third woman

President Trump called Julie Swetnick's lawyer Michael Avenatti a "total lowlife" following the allegation.

A third woman on Wednesday accused Brett Kavanaugh, President Donald Trump's U.S. Supreme Court nominee, of sexual misconduct in the 1980s, further inflaming an already contentious Senate confirmation process. Kavanaugh immediately denied the allegation.

The woman, Julie Swetnick, detailed her allegation in a statement to the Senate Judiciary Committee a day before the Republican-led panel is set to hold a high-stakes hearing in which Kavanaugh and Christine Blasey Ford, who has accused him of a sexual assault in 1982, will testify.

"This is ridiculous and from the Twilight Zone," Kavanaugh said in a statement released by the White House. "I don't know who this is and this never happened."

Swetnick is represented by lawyer Michael Avenatti, who also represents adult-film star Stormy Daniels in a lawsuit against Trump to void a nondisclosure agreement under which the president's former personal lawyer paid her $130,000 not to discuss her alleged relationship with Trump more than a decade ago.

Speaking to reporters in New York, where he is attending the annual U.N. gathering of world leaders, Trump said of the new allegation, "I think it's ridiculous." On Twitter, Trump called Avenatti "a total low-life" and "a third rate lawyer who is good at making false accusations." Avenatti responded on Twitter, calling Trump "a habitual liar and complete narcissist."

In her statement, Swetnick said she attended more than 10 house parties in the Washington area from 1981 to 1983 where Kavanaugh was present. She described gang rapes she said occurred in which boys would line up to rape incapacitated girls.

"In approximately 1982, I became the victim of one of these 'gang' or 'train' rapes where Mark Judge and Brett Kavanaugh were present," she said, mentioning the name of a close friend of Kavanaugh. She did not identify her attackers and did not accuse Kavanaugh of taking part.

"During the incident, I was incapacitated without my consent and unable to fight off the boys raping me. I believe I was drugged using Quaaludes [a sedative] or something similar placed in what I was drinking," she said.

She also said she witnessed efforts by Kavanaugh and others "to cause girls to become inebriated and disoriented so they could then be 'gang raped' in a side room or a bedroom by a 'train' of numerous boys," adding she remembers boys including Kavanaugh getting in lines to take part in these rapes.

She did not identify the individuals directly involved in those assaults.

In an interview with Fox News on Monday, Kavanaugh was asked whether he ever participated in or was aware of any gang rape at a party he attended. "That's totally false and outrageous. I've never done any such thing, known about any such thing," Kavanaugh responded.

THE FOREMAN FORECAST: THE BIG BET ON KAVANAUGH

TOM FOREMAN

Make the robe, order the congratulatory cupcakes, and call the photographer for a new class portrait: Brett Kavanaugh is going to be the next Supreme Court Justice. At least, that is the widespread wisdom among D.C. pundits. Despite all the anger and disbelief of Democrats, the raging headlines and frustration among women's rights advocates, the vote to confirm him is still considered a likely bet.

Now you may be among the many asking, "How can this be?" You've heard the accusations against him. You've watched the frothy debates about his guilt or innocence. You perhaps believe a full-fledged FBI investigation is warranted.

What's more, we haven't even heard the chief accuser on the record and under oath. Christine Blasey Ford is scheduled to face the Senate Judiciary Committee this Thursday to expand upon her claims that Kavanaugh pinned her to a bed and tried to remove her clothes at a drunken party in high school. So again, with so much outstanding, how can his confirmation seem so probable? Three reasons:

1. Despite widespread support for the #MeToo movement, it has come along at the exact same time that we have a president, Donald Trump, who stands accused of a good many sexual improprieties...yet has a fiercely loyal base of supporters ready to punish anyone who gets in his way. And he wants Kavanaugh on the court.

2. The most pointed accusation so far flows out of Kavanaugh's high school years, opening the door — fairly or not — to the "we were all just crazy kids back then" defense. And he has flatly denied all accusations, so there is that.

3. Republicans have waited years to be in this position, and if they push Kavanaugh through they will probably have a conservative majority on the highest court in the land for the next 20 years. Period.

And as much as elected officials like to talk about principles, justice, fairness and so on, what really counts in this town when the chips are down is power. That's why, despite all the wild cards on the table, the smart money is still on Kavanaugh.

BRIEF

Trump says he prefers to keep Rosenstein as deputy AG

President Donald Trump said on Wednesday he would prefer to keep Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein in his job, after the New York Times reported Rosenstein had suggested secretly recording Trump and recruiting Cabinet members to remove the president from office.

"I'm talking with him. We've had a good talk. He said he never said it. He said he doesn't believe. He said he has a lot of respect for me. And he was very nice. And we'll see," Trump said at a news conference, when asked if he would fire Rosenstein.

"My preference would be to keep him and to let him finish up," Trump said, without explaining what he would like Rosenstein to finish working on.

Some news media reported on Monday that Rosenstein would soon leave his post, prompting Trump, in New York for the U.N. General Assembly, to say he would meet with the second-most powerful Justice Department official on Thursday. But Trump told the news conference he could delay the meeting for fear of distracting from a Senate hearing on Brett Kavanaugh, his embattled nominee to join the Supreme Court. REUTERS

Lying, not sexual misconduct, may bring down Kavanaugh

Amid the sexual-assault accusations, previous evidence of the Supreme Court nominee's dishonesty — including lying under oath — has been obscured.

letters@metro.us

By many accounts, embattled Supreme Court nominee Brett Kavanaugh did not do himself any favors during his Monday night interview on Fox News. President Trump reportedly said Kavanaugh seemed “weak,” and the nominee, who has been accused of committing sexual assault as a teenager, made claims — such as that he was a virgin for “many years after high school” and wasn’t a heavy drinker — that acquaintances immediately took to Twitter to dispute.

Questions about Kavanaugh’s honesty permeated his confirmation hearings — well before Christine Blasey Ford accused him of sexually abusing her during a drunken party in high school — and began with his first remarks after his nomination was announced.

Kavanaugh has a record of lying under oath:

1. At the White House event in which President Trump formally nominated him, Kavanaugh said, “No president has ever consulted more widely, or talked with more people from more backgrounds, to seek input about a Supreme Court nomination.” As a number of analysts pointed out, Kavanaugh’s name came from a list generated by the ultra-conservative Federalist Society and circulated by Trump as a presidential candidate.

2. There is evidence that Kavanaugh lied under oath during confirmation hearings for his previous judicial positions, wrote former Sen. Russ Feingold in HuffPost. During Kavanaugh’s confirmation hearing for his 2006 appointment to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in D.C., Feingold asked about Kavanaugh’s involvement with Judge Charles Pickering, who was accused of breaching judicial ethics by collecting letters of support from other judges while up for his own Circuit Court post. Kavanaugh said he was not involved with Pickering. But recently-released emails showed that Kavanaugh was the primary person involved in handling Pickering’s nomination.

“One Department of Justice official even asked for Kavanaugh’s ‘blessings and instructions’ before calling the nominee. Others may have been involved, but Kavanaugh played a decisive leadership role in managing Pickering’s nomination and then lied to me about it,” wrote Feingold.

3. During his confirmation hearings for the Circuit Court and the Supreme Court, Kavanaugh — who, as assistant White House counsel, was in charge of preparing President George W. Bush’s judicial candidates for their Senate hearings — denied receiving opposition research stolen from Democratic senators by a GOP Senate aide named Manuel Miranda.

But recently-released emails show that Kavanaugh received content from “numerous emails, draft letters and memos laying out the legal arguments Democrats were going to make regarding Bush’s judicial nominees, including talking points written by a staffer to Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.),” wrote Feingold in HuffPost on Sept. 17.

“One email even had the subject line ‘Spying’ on it. Kavanaugh not only received that message, which mentioned a “mole,” but forwarded it to Gonzales. Leahy asked Kavanaugh about this regrettable episode in the 2004 confirmation hearing, and Kavanaugh’s responses were both unsatisfying and evasive.”

4. When Sen. Kamala Harris asked Kavanaugh if he had ever discussed Robert Mueller’s Russia investigation with an attorney at the firm of Kasowitz Benson Torres — which was founded by Marc Kasowitz, President Trump’s personal lawyer — he stammered and awkwardly attempted to obfuscate, but didn’t answer the question.

For now, the GOP is standing behind Kavanaugh ahead of Thursday’s hearing in which he will respond to Christine Blasey Ford’s accusations, which have now been bolstered by two more women. But a few Republican senators are waffling, and depending on what Kavanaugh says, some may look back at his record and end up agreeing with Feingold:

“As a onetime member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, I considered the truthfulness of judicial nominees as a non-negotiable quality,” he said. “Lying under oath cannot and must not be rewarded with a seat on the nation’s highest court, and lies cannot remain unchallenged.”

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Brooklyn Navy Yard sees record job growth

More jobs are coming to New Yorkers thanks to this growing manufacturing hub.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

The Brooklyn Navy Yard is making itself known as a manufacturing hub that helps New Yorkers find employment, and it seems to be working.

The Brooklyn Navy Yard Development Corporation's employment center connected 459 people to jobs in fiscal year 2018 — the most single-year hires since the center opened 19 years ago.

That job stat comes from a report released Wednesday by the Brooklyn Navy Yard Development Corporation. Those 459 new hires will earn a total of $12 million annually, according to the report.

The Yard is home to a variety of manufacturing spaces, with companies that make everything from countertops to whiskey to apparel. In November 2017, Mayor Bill de Blasio announced the opening of Building 77, a 16-story, one-million-square-foot manufacturing hub set to create more than 6,000 jobs.

Fiscal year 2018's job growth puts the corporation on track to reach its goal of providing 17,000 jobs by 2020, according to the company.

The yard helps provide accessible middle-class jobs in New York City, according to the mayor, and the Brooklyn Navy Yard Development Corporation report took a look into who made up the year's 459 hires in the report.

Per the report, 84 percent of the new hires are Brooklyn residents, with 33 percent of all the hires coming from the Yard's closest five surrounding zip codes.

Thirty-four percent of the hires live in NYCHA buildings, and over 46 percent have a high school diploma or GED (13 percent do not). Fourteen percent of the hires have experience in the criminal justice system.

Since the Brooklyn Navy Yard is a manufacturing hub, that field accounts for most of the hires: 55 percent are in manufacturing. Construction comprises 13 percent of jobs, and administrative/office work and food and customer service each accounted for 7 percent. Transportation, security, health and human services and other labor rounded out the new hires in smaller amounts.

Pricy 550 Vanderbilt penthouse breaks neighborhood record

Pacific Park Brooklyn is 22-acre mixed-use development project that strives to be “more than a place” but a community. While it is years away from completion, residential building 550 Vanderbilt has already set a neighborhood record.

PHS at 550 Vanderbilt has hit the market for $7.71 million and is the most expensive penthouse listing to hit the market in the up-and-coming Prospect Heights neighborhood.

$7.71M

PHS at 550 Vanderbilt has hit the market for $7.71 million and is the most expensive penthouse listing to hit the market in the up-and-coming Prospect Heights neighborhood.

So what's so special about PHS at 550 Vanderbilt?

It is among the first residential buildings to open in Pacific Park Brooklyn, and its PHS occupies nearly 3,000 square feet.

The four-bedroom home features 4.5 baths, high ceilings, oversized windows that offer breathtaking views of the neighborhood and more than 2,400 square feet of outdoor space.

PHS at 550 Vanderbilt also has the distinct honor of being Real Simple's very first Idea House, which “will showcase the best products, methods and tips for an organized space,” Daren Mazzucca, the magazine's publisher, said in a statement last month.

A notable interior designer or home organizer has curated each room in the luxury apartment, and Nate Berkus and Jeremiah Brent will debut their exclusive furniture collection for Living Spaces in PHS at 550 Vanderbilt.

Among the others involved in the project are HGTV personality Sabrina Soto, Donna Garlough of Joss & Main and organizers from NEAT Method.

“The 550 Vanderbilt penthouse is a premier Brooklyn listing given its unparalleled amenities and distinguished location,” said Ryan Serhant, who is managing sales at the building for Nest Seekers. “Our partnership with Real Simple and top designers like Nate Berkus and Jeremiah Brent reveals the limitless possibilities in creating a luxurious home in this space.”

The future residents of PHS at 550 Vanderbilt will also have access to 10,000 square feet of building amenities. Among those are a 24-hour concierge service, a McNally Jackson-stocked library, a roof deck, a fitness center designed by The Wright Fit, a children's playroom, a courtyard, bike storage and a pet washing/grooming station. Google's impact on the world, 20 years later

GETTY IMAGES

On its 20th birthday, Metro looks at how Google has helped augment people's intelligence.

MIGUEL VELASQUEZ,

PROVIDED

On Thursday, Google turns 20. A small project started by Larry Page and Sergey Brin while they were Ph.D. students at Stanford University has grown into one of the main technology companies in the world with more than 85,000 employees. To learn how the giant has transformed over the years and which challenges it is expected to face in the future, Metro talked with Howard Yu, professor of management and innovation at the IMD Business School in Switzerland.

How has Google changed our lives? Few companies possess a mission statement as ambitious as Google's: Organize the world's information and make it universally accessible and useful. Still, as ambitious as its mission may sound, Google has gone far beyond the lofty aspiration. From web search to Android to Translate to YouTube, Google dominates our digital life, and in the process, has single-handedly changed the way we acquire and retrieve knowledge.

What are Google's main ments in technological development? Google has truly mastered the art and science of consumer targeting. When HBO is to display an ad about the new season of "Game of Thrones" for a reader who is scrolling through a digital article about the show by the New York Times, all HBO needs is to have Google supplying an algorithm that understands the behavioral correlation. Google knows precisely who clicks what and who should see what ads.

After 20 years, what are Google's main challenges today? Every highly successful Google product has either been free, ad-driven or closely related to the search engine: Maps, Gmail, Chrome, YouTube, Android, Photo, Translate, etc. The more a product requires end-users to pay directly, the less Google can dominate the competition. Google Cloud has about 5 percent of the market share, whereas Amazon Web Services is generating $1.3 billion a year, a distant No. 2 behind Microsoft Office's $13.8 billion.

What about future challenges? The biggest challenge for tech giants like Google is people "like" them less. That all-knowing algorithm, the under-the-hood machine learning tool that powers everything from Facebook's news feed to Google's self-driving cars, remains opaque and unchallenged, protected by intellectual property rights as "trade secrets," much like the Coca-Cola recipe. But the difference between Coca-Cola and Google is, of course, in their business models. Google, YouTube, Facebook, and Instagram all generate revenue through advertising. Consumers get digital services for free; consumers pay for their Coca-Cola. And that seemingly "free" service has introduced what economists call the "principal-agent" problem: that high-tech firms may not act in consumers' best interest despite Google's motto of "Do no harm."

LIFESTYLE

20 Years of 'Law and Order: SVU'

The stars of the long-running show reflect on how it brought the #MeToo conversation to the water-cooler.

patrick.king@metro.us

Dick Wolf might have superpowers. The creator of the cultural institution "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" has been pointing the spotlight on sexually based crimes well before the #MeToo movement gained the visibility that it has today.

This year will mark "Law and Order SVU" season 20, and the show has only gained more relevance as the narrative around sexual assault.

Metro had the chance to speak with some of the stars of the show at the Tribeca TV Festival ahead of the show's premiere on Thursday September 29th.

Giving a voice to survivors

In a panel in front of hundreds of die-hard fans, no speaker received nearly the same reaction as Mariska Hargitay, who plays the uncompromising Det. Olivia Benson. When addressing her, creator Dick Wolf addressed her as the "grandmother of the #MeToo movement" for her continued work with her own charity, The Joyful Heart Foundation, as well as in reference to how her character has been a guardian angel for the survivors of sexual trauma on the show.

"I feel so grateful that we have brought something that has been traditionally swept under the carpet," said Hargitay.

"Something that has left survivors in shame and isolation — profound shame and profound isolation. I'm so grateful that this show has brought this to the water-cooler. Brought this conversation into the public arena in a way that has been profound, and I've done a lot of healing. Being able to tell these stories has been nothing short of a privilege and a gift."

The effortlessly cool Ice-T believes the show will do what it has always done when it comes to highlighting these issues as it continues.

Other than Mariska Hargitay, Ice-T is the show's elder statesmen having joined in the second season as his beloved character, Fin Tutuola, for what was supposed to be a four-episode arc. He's been with the show since. So what keeps him inspired after all of these years?

"I don't know if I'm passionate or inspired. It's just, I'm an actor," says Ice. "I got on the show to do four episodes and it turned into 20 years. It's fun to come to work. Everybody on the show is nice. The working environment is cool. People love the show. So when I'm out in the streets people love me because — they love me because I'm on the show. That'll inspire you!

"I mean, think about it if you were on a show and everyone hates you. You'd be like 'Man, I don't know how long I wanna do this.' So the energy behind the show is so good. I'm an entertainer, so I'm just inspired to work. I'm just happy to have a job. How many actors are gonna get a ride for 20 years?"

"You find out also that this show is a little bit more than just entertainment — it's therapy for a lot of people. It's another layer where people walk up to you and say, 'Thank you.' Not just, 'I like the show'; they say 'Thank you.' You realize you're not only entertaining them but you're helping them. So that's a good vibe, too."

"Law and Order SVU" season 20 will premiere with a special two-hour episode Thursday, Sept. 27 on NBC at 9 p.m.

Joan Jett on #MeToo and her 'Bad Reputation'

The Godmother of Punk talks about the movement and more as her new documentary hits theaters.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

It's interesting to look back at the reaction Joan Jett and the Runaways provoked when they originally burst onto the music scene.

The male-dominated media didn't know what to do or how to react to the all-female teenage rock band's confrontational and proudly sexual aesthetic and music. It's not that Cherie Currie, Lita Ford, Sandy West, Jackie Fox and Joan Jett were doing anything different to the likes of the Rolling Stones, Kiss or David Bowie, though. It's that they were young women.

The reaction looks particularly misogynistic in the current climate, where the #MeToo and #TimesUp movements have shaken up the patriarchy.

Ahead of the release of her new documentary "Bad Reputation," Joan Jett tells Metro that she sees a link between her groundbreaking start in the music industry and what's going on today.

"I totally see a link. It is pervasive," says Jett. "I think pretty much every woman has some kind of experience in a #MeToo situation. There are so many you can't really go into it. Or remember them all."

But while Jett sees a link, she doesn't believe that enough has changed when it comes to female equality.

"I don't see a big shift since The Runaways days. Things have not changed that much. It might look different," she says. "Women are in powerful positions, there are more women in more powerful positions. But it still to me is a lot of window dressing."

"Until women are in real positions of power, where they yield the money and make decisions about where the money goes," Jett adds. "Then we will have a more equitable playing field. It is still difficult turf. But that's life. What are you gonna do?"

But while Jett's place in musical history has long been certain, what did she originally want to achieve when she founded the Runaways at the age of 17, back in 1975?

"We wanted to make it not strange for girls or women to play rock 'n' roll. What we were really trying to say was that girls could do anything outside of the boundaries that had been set," says Jett. "We wanted to be the female Rolling Stones. We wanted to play rock 'n' roll, and rock 'n' roll is very sexual in its very nature. If women or girls are singing rock 'n' roll it is sexual."

"We don't have to sing about sex for it to be sexual. I certainly see in America, America has problems with girls speaking about sex in general. Especially with teenage girls, then the conversation stops," she adds. "But teenage girls have these feelings. Teenage girls get horny. I'm sorry, but they do. So to obliterate that whole aspect of a woman when she is younger is really disrespectful."

Jett admits that she "didn't see this at the time, but reflecting on it is a natural thing. It shouldn't be so uncomfortable to talk about. But it was."

TODOEverything at this bakery has CBDOver 25 CBD-infused treats await you at Feelz by Chloe.
ALL PHOTOS LESLIE KIRCHHOFF

For two weeks, vegan-dessert darling Sweets By Chloe becomes Feelz By Chloe, with a line of 25 CBD-infused baked goods and beverages.

EVA KIS
eva.kis@metro.us

CBD, the anxiety-soothing compound found in cannabis, is everywhere, turning up in lattes, cocktails and gourmet dank-quets. Vegan dessert shop Sweets by Chloe tested the demand for a CBD-laced Daily Hit Brownie on 4/20 this year, and the treat was such a success the brand is launching 25 new CBD-infused goodies under the brand name Feelz By Chloe.

The Feelz By Chloe menu spans the entire dessert case of plant-based goodies. You'll find pastries like Rainbowey Ooey Gooney Cinnamon Rolls, Suga Cinnamon Espressoey Cookie and Chocolatey Leafy Brownie, plus cupcakes, Rice Krispie treats, granola, mini pies, push-pops, whoopie pies, Funfetti babka, popcorn, drinks like bubble tea and coffees, and dog bones, all infused with various doses of CBD.

The line launches today at both Sweets By Chloe locations — 185 Bleecker St. in Greenwich Village and the new Seaport District shop at 181 Front St. — before expanding to By Chloe's 13 locations worldwide. To celebrate, both locations are getting a psychedelic makeover inspired by the '70s. Designed by Samantha Wasser, the co-founder and creative director of By Chloe, the Feelz By Chloe stores are meant to feel like the "glam den of your dreams" packed with moody kitsch, memorabilia and plenty of sparkle.

The shops will also host a CBD boutique with other edibles like Pot D'Huile Olive Oil and Soul Addict Butter, as well as items like Ded-cool Cannabis Chapstick.

The Feelz By Chloe makeover will last from Thursday, Sept. 27 through Sunday, Oct. 14. Then on Oct. 15, select Feelz by Chloe goodies will be available at all By Chloe locations for six weeks.

Feelz By Chloe's treats are the first to use a new CBD oil created by Toast, which started out as a marijuana cigarette brand (not here, as recreational marijuana in NYC remains illegal for now) and is expanding into hemp-based CBD products. Though both hemp and marijuana are cannabis plants, they're cultivated differently so hemp has very little (if any) of the hallucinogenic compound THC, which makes it legal to grow.

CBD is short for cannabidiol, the cannabis extract responsible for helping you relax mentally and physically with no hallucinogenic properties (that's THC). As a supplement, it's been readily available for years and is said to reduce inflammation, ease mild pain, and help with anxiety and insomnia.

Scientific studies are still pending — a seizure medication with CBD as an ingredient was only approved for use by the FDA this June, and CBD still needs to be reclassified by the Drug Enforcement Agency.

The real question is, will the mellowing effects of CBD counteract the sugar rush? You'll just have to try them yourself to find out.

The fight against erectile dysfunction

Don't worry. It happens.
But there are ways to stop it!
By Pat King

Many men deal with the awkward physical disability commonly known as erectile dysfunction. As a matter of fact, it may be a more common drawback for more men than you may think. According to a study conducted by the Cleveland Clinic, roughly 52 percent of men experience erectile dysfunction in their day-to-day lives, with 40 percent of men age 40 experience it and 70 percent of men age 70. So what are some ways that you can combat this ... gulp... disappointing condition that affects so many men in the bedroom?

Eat and live right

As with many ailments, erectile dysfunction can be closely related to how much you exercise and how well you eat on a daily basis.

In a nutshell — by getting the right amount of cardio during the week, you will maintain a lower blood pressure which can help you to achieve healthier erections when it matters the most.

Eating right can also contribute to lowering your blood pressure with food like dark chocolate, pistachios, and watermelon all linked to lowering cholesterol and increasing the blood flow in the right areas. Some bad news for those who like the drink a few cocktails from time to time however is that drinking to excess has historically been linked to cases of erectile dysfunction. So try to cut back if you want to see improvements down there.

The importance of a healthy diet cannot be overstated in cases of erectile dysfunction as WebMD found. It is estimated that around "35-75% of men with diabetes will experience at least some degree of erectile dysfunction during their lifetime." On top of that, men with diabetes will develop ED 10 to 15 years before men without diabetes.

Cut out the problem at the root

While many pills and contraptions have been touted as the end all be all cures of this worrisome condition, few have produced the same exciting restorative results as the ErectionWave treatment. Created by board certified urologist, Dr. David Shusterman, this new innovative treatment has taken a different approach to this issue than, say, swallowing a couple vias on a nightly basis. The most exciting aspect of this treatment is that it actually works to cure the real issues behind ED and not offering a temporary solution. By directing high frequency rays towards blood vessels that have been blocked, ErectionWave treatment will increase blood through these pathways to allow for stronger and longer lasting natural erections without the assistance of pills or useless penis pumps.

Another more direct erectile dysfunction cure is known as the Priapus Shot — or otherwise known simply as the "P-shot". This completely pain-free shot has been known to not only increase sex drive but increase the overall penis size to 3.5 centimeters. The shot gets these results by by kickstarting a man's own growth factors in his blood to recruit his body's own stem cells down to the penis causing quicker regeneration of tissue and blood vessels.

If you are interested in either of these groundbreaking treatments, make your appointment with Dr. Shusterman today by calling 212-661-0060.

An empowering day
for women of color

The year's largest gathering to celebrate and unite women of color, the Circle of Sisters Expo returns to Javits Center this Saturday. Over 40,000 are expected for a fun-filled day of performances, celebrity panels with guests including Cynthia Erivo, Bobby Brown, En Vogue and Wendy Williams, seminars and a sprawling marketplace. Sept. 29, 10 a.m.-10 p.m. $20-$25, wbis.com

Eat all the bacon and drink all the beer

If you like bacon or beer, there's only one place to be this weekend: the Bacon and Beer Classic, with a new home at the USTA

National Tennis Center, packing in 50 local restaurants serving up original bacon dishes and 50 local and national breweries, plus games and live music. Sept. 29, 1-4 p.m. and 7-10 p.m., $69-$135, baconandbeerclassic.com

A slightly healthier Oktoberfest

Work for your beer and brats during Hike-toberfest 2018, all to support the upkeep of Van Cortlandt Park. Join a 4-5 mile hike or a more leisurely 2-mile hike on Saturday afternoon, followed by an Oktoberfest celebration with yard games alongside German food by Loreley Restaurant & Biergarten and unlimited beer. Sept. 29, 2-7 p.m., Van Cortlandt House Museum, 6036 Broadway, Bronx, $25-$75, eventbrite.com

Party with RuPaul

The champions of
the subway

There are people in New York City who not only still love the subways, they're willing to dance and sing about it onstage. Join the City Reliquary Museum and the transit-oriented teens of NYC at Littlefield this Thursday for the second Miss Subways Pageant, a raucous talent competition where subway lovers compete to be voted the unofficial champion of the rails. Sept. 27, doors at 7 p.m., 635 Sackett St., Brooklyn, $20-$25, littlefieldnyc.com

Eat pastries by a master chef

Dominique Ansel Bakery makes room among the Cronuts and other seasonal treats for a guest turn by renowned pastry chef Amaury Guichon. It's the first time Guichon will be making his pastries available in New York, serving three of his signature items: a Hazelnut Ring, Pavlova and the Chocolate Cylinder. Sept. 28-30, 8 a.m. while they last, 189 Spring St., dominiqueansel.com

Queens Night
Market is back

The Queens International Night Market returns to the grounds of the New York Hall of Science for its fall season on Saturday nights starting this weekend. Sample the world of cuisine from more than 50 food vendors with nothing costing more than $6. Sept. 29-Oct. 27, 6 p.m.-midnight, Flushing Meadows-Corona Park, queensnightmarket.com

The heat is on

There's more to heat than hot sauces, though there will be plenty of those at the Brooklyn Botanic Garden's Chile Pepper Festival. You'll also find food vendors, live music and "fiery feats" like sword-swallowing. Sept. 29, $25, bbg.org

An endurance festival of swing
and jazz acts

Dress your best (there will be prizes!) but wear comfortable shoes for the New York Hot Jazz Fest, which brings over 100 artists to three stages for a 12-hour marathon of music across the McKittrick Hotel. The brunches are sold out, but there are still general admission tickets available starting at 4 p.m. and lasting through a Midnight Speakeasy Party going on until 2 a.m. Sept. 30, $59-$69, 530 W. 27th St., mckittrickhotel.com

So far, the Rams are living up to Super Bowl expectations. We're looking at one of the league's most potent offenses along with a terrifying defense. Against a Vikings team that lost to the Bills in home in Week 3, it's a no-brainer, I'm going with the Rams on Thursday night.

Breaking down Yankees' Torres, Andujar's Rookie of the Year chances

Metro takes a look at the two frontrunners for the American League Rookie of the Year, both of whom just so happen to be Yankees.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Due to the entitlement of many New York Yankees fans, it's often lost how well things happen to fall into place for them.

Just two years ago, this was a team facing a rebuild. In 2018, they're preparing for a postseason run, even if it may just be for a single night in the American League Wild Card game.

While supporters of other franchises around the league veil jealousy with incredulity, the Yankees are the megafanchise that can build a winner in any way possible.

Sure, they can go out and trade for a Giancarlo Stanton or they can flash the cash to sign big-name free agents. These have been givens for decades.

But just in case the names Derek Jeter, Bernie Williams, Andy Pettitte, Mariano Rivera and Aaron Judge made you forget, the Yankees can also develop prospects into bona fide stars.

The Yankees just so happen to have two top-tier prospects not only make the jump to the majors in 2018, but excel.

Heading into the season, all eyes were on second baseman Gleyber Torres. Not only was he the top prospect in the Yankees' farm system, but he was the best-rated youngster among all major-league hopefuls.

While his MLB debut was delayed to this year after he was forced to undergo Tommy John surgery, Torres has quickly developed into the infielder the Yankees hoped he would become.

His development into a star was expected.

That wasn't necessarily the case with Miguel Andujar. While the third baseman was highly-touted, he did not have the same sort of expectations laid on him compared to Torres.

In fact, Andujar didn't even make the big-league roster coming out of spring training despite ripping the cover off the ball for the first few weeks of the exhibition season.

Mysterious mi-graines suffered by Brandon Drury, though, opened the door for Andujar to make it to the Bronx by the sixth game into the season.

Drury became the new Wally Pipp (read a book if you don't get the reference) before he was dealt to the Toronto Blue Jays for J.A. Happ while Andujar scorched to the headlines in New York.

Now with the regular season winding down, the two Yankees youngsters are very much the frontrunners for the American League Rookie of the Year award. Their only competition comes in the form of Los Angeles Angels pitching and hitting extraordinaire Shohei Ohtani, though a large chunk of his season has been robbed due to injury.

Here is how the three Rookie of the Year candidates stack up heading into the final few games of the 2018 regular season (stats as of Sept. 26):

Harvey hates Mets? Tell us something we don't know

The former Mets pitcher sounds as though he wants no part of his old team.

joseph.pantorno@metro.us

It was a foregone conclusion that pitcher Matt Harvey probably had some ill feelings toward the New York Mets, his former team.

While he didn't just come out and say that on Tuesday night, he got as close as one possibly could without actually saying that he wants no part of the Queens-based franchise.

Speaking with the Athletic's C. Trent Rosenkrans, Harvey, who now plays with the Cincinnati Reds, addressed his outlook heading into free agency this winter.

"There's only one team

out there I would not sign with, that's about it."

If I were a betting man, I think I'd put my money on the team that plays at Citi Field and wears blue and orange as the one he would not sign with.

The 29-year-old spent six-plus seasons with the Mets in a tenure that began with such promise and ended in disgrace.

Making his debut in 2012, Harvey showed the promise of becoming one of the most electrifying pitchers in all of baseball, going 12-10 with a 2.39 ERA and 261 strikeouts in 36 starts from 2012-2013.

His fast start culminated with the honor of him starting the 2013 All-Star Game at Citi Field before his season ended in disaster as he had to undergo Tommy John surgery.

After missing the entire 2014 campaign, Harvey came back only to be hampered by injuries and off-field issues.

In 2015, he returned to an innings limit that provided the first cracks of his relationship with the Mets. While he and agent Scott Boras implored that he be limited, the Mets were chasing the National League pennant and needed one of their top arms for the stretch run.

Harvey would pitch in the postseason and is best remembered for pitching Game 5, going eight strong innings and begging manager Terry Collins to go out for the ninth with a 2-0 lead. He allowed a walk and a double before being relieved by Jeurys Familia. The Mets would go on to lose the game and the World Series in extra innings that night.

The following season was cut short once again after Harvey was forced to undergo surgery to relieve complications that came with thoracic outlet syndrome (TOS), which included the loss of feeling in his hands. One of Harvey's ribs had to be removed in order to mend the issues.

He came back a completely different pitcher, one that basically had to re-learn how to throw a baseball. It showed as he accumulated a 6.80 ERA 27 starts from 2017 to the beginning of 2018.

While he struggled, Harvey maintained the defiant, confrontational attitude that landed him in hot water with the organization throughout his stint with the Mets.

When the team attempted to send him down to the minors in May, management designated him for assignment and shortly after traded him to the Reds for catcher Devin Mesoraco.

In 24 starts with the Reds this year he's 7-7 with a 4.50 ERA.

Sure, he might not want to come back to the Mets, but Mets fans probably don't want him anywhere near Queens anytime soon.

Matt Harvey is likely throwing shade at the Mets. GETTY IMAGES
